

“We must all learn to live together as brothers or we will all perish together as fools. We are tied together in the single garment of destiny, caught in an inescapable network of mutuality. And whatever affects one directly affects all indirectly. For some strange reason I can never be what I ought to be until you are what you ought to be. And you can never be what you ought to be until I am what I ought to be.”

Anthony Hebron
Senior Vice-President, Battelle Corporation
Columbus Ohio

Anthony Hebron joined Battelle January 15, 2007, as Senior Vice President, Corporate Relations. An elected officer of Battelle, Mr. Hebron manages the community affairs, communications and government relations functions for Battelle.

Battelle is the world's largest independent research and development organization, with 20,000 employees in more than 120 locations worldwide, including five national laboratories Battelle manages or co-manages for the U.S. Department of Energy, of which one is the Idaho National Laboratory (INL). Headquartered in Columbus, Ohio, Battelle conducts $3.7 billion in R&D annually through contract research, laboratory management, and technology commercialization. Battelle provides innovative solutions to some of the world's most important problems including global climate change, sustainable energy technologies, high performance materials, next generation healthcare diagnostics and therapeutics, and advanced security solutions for people, infrastructure, and the nation.

Battelle has a long history of developing successful commercial products in collaboration with its clients, ranging from products to fight diabetes, cancer and heart disease to the development of the office copier machine (Xerox). As a non-profit charitable trust with an eye toward the future, Battelle actively supports and promotes science and math education.

Mr. Hebron comes to Battelle from Limited Brands, Inc., where he served as Vice President of External Communications for seven years. At Limited Brands, Inc., Mr. Hebron established a strategic external communications function responsible for proactive and responsive media relations, issues and crisis management. The department successfully enhanced shareholder value through strategic corporate branding campaigns for two companies and eight businesses including Victoria's Secret, Express and Bath & Body Works.
